

Deadlock Ends At Lansing; Spending Floodgates Open

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Legislature shook off a week old mood of lethargic stalemate Friday, passing more than $1.2 billion worth of long delayed budget bills between houses for further action.

Despite the furious pace of the money shuffling for the fiscal year entering its third month next week, Gov. William G. Milliken warned he would not sign any of the bills "until it is clear that the budget will be balanced with a surplus."

"I will work with the leadership of both houses to force reductions in spending back to the level of my budget recommendations," Milliken said.

WHO KNOWS?

But even the governor appeared unsure just where the still tentative budget stood. In his statement, he estimated bills passed Friday were "about $60 million above my recommendations."

At another point in a broadcast interview, he called the budget "out of kilter by close to $70 million."

The lion's share of the action, involving some $1.14 billion, was in the House, which ended a major deadlock shortly before noon by passing a bitterly fought welfare bill estimated at $534.9 million.

The sum was about $65.6 million more than Milliken originally proposed and would be slightly more than $100 million over Social Service Department spending last year.

Inclusion in the bill of a $2.65 daily Aid to Dependent Children allocation represented another political coup for Speaker William A. Ryan. He dickered and maneuvered for weeks against Republican opposition to any increase over the $2.54 daily level of last year.

The addition put projected ADC spending at $415.3 million, roughly half is paid by federal matching funds.

Only five Republicans joined 53 Democrats in voting down three Democrats and 42 Republicans opposing the bill.

Passage released a flood of other money bills through the day.

—University and junior college funds totaling $360.3 million, an increase of $30 million over last year's support. Another $1.8 million was contained in a bill, sent to the Senate, to help financially strapped Wayne Community College in Detroit weather the old fiscal year.

—$208.03 million for mental health and drug treatment centers. The House added some $4 million that may be removed later if lawmakers decide to put a developing drug control project elsewhere.

—$35.89 million for the state's prison system. Ryan, arguing for an increased ADC subsidy, contended that comparable daily costs for housing a prisoner range from $7.56 at Southern Michigan Prison, Jackson, to $12.61 at Marquette. Daily costs at various training schools are as much as $20-$30, he said.

—$1.8 million worth of planning and construction funds. The Senate, meanwhile, passed a $76.1 million budget for the legislature, governor's office and several other state departments.

The 20-10 vote there added nearly $2.5 million to a $3.4 million Senate operating fund approved earlier in the House. There was no change in $7.85 million for the House, NEW CAPITOL.

A $12.5 million construction funds bill also passed the Senate. Appropriations Chairman Charles O. Zollar, (See back page, sec. 1, col. 5)

PLANE HITS HOUSE: This was the scene at a Cleveland, Ohio home Friday where a Chicago & Southern Airlines mail plane crashed into the rear of a house, knocking the roof to the ground and killing two persons. The victims were identified as Alex Rhodes, 70, who lived in the house and John Angelo, 35, of Illinois and Hawaii, the copilot of the plane. The pilot, Thomas Babiarz, 23, of Hickory Hills, Ill., was in fair condition. The plane landed on the second floor of the house, then burst in flames. (AP Wirephoto)

College Towns To Feel Impact Of Vote Ruling

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled Friday that college and university students must be allowed to register and vote in their campus communities.

The ruling is expected to boost the chances of liberals and Democrats in local municipal elections in many towns and cities across the state.

These developments are covered in two stories on the front page of section two.

No Prosecution For Traveler's Quip About Bomb

Benton Harbor police this morning arrested a Beaumont, Tex., man at the Ross field airport terminal, after receiving a report of a bomb inside a suitcase.

Police said the man later was released from custody after no bomb was found and the U.S. attorney's office in Grand Rapids reported it would not prosecute the case.

Officers were called to the airport about 6:30 a.m. when terminal agent, Willard Brown of Coloma, reported that a man checked in to weigh a suitcase and warned that it should be handled with care, because of a bomb inside.

Police said the man was waiting for a North Central flight and apparently was annoyed at having missed an earlier flight on Friday.

Apprehended at the airport by city police was Harry Louis Smith, 37, Beaumont. Police said Smith temporarily resides at the Vincel hotel and was planning a plane trip home.

Smith was detained at headquarters until federal authorities could be contacted for further disposition of the matter. No formal charges resulted, police said. Federal authorities have jurisdiction in cases involving interstate transportation.

He Didn't Step Back Far Enough

SOUTH HAVEN — Marine Capt. Stuart Berman, of San Diego, Calif., was listed in fairly good condition today at South Haven Community hospital from injuries suffered Friday when he was struck in the head with a golf club.

The incident occurred at South Haven Golf Club, north of here.

State police from the South Haven post said Capt. Berman was giving a golf lesson to Patricia Harmon, South Haven, when he was struck on the left side of the head.

Capt. Berman said that after showing Miss Harmon how to hit the ball, he stepped back. He was struck on the head on Miss Harmon's follow-through after hitting the ball.

Mayor's Wife Still 'Putting Up' With Him

"The same woman has put up with me for 45 years," Benton Harbor Mayor Wilbert Smith noted today. The mayor said nothing special was planned for the occasion. "We will wait for the 50th," Mrs. Smith is the former Dorothy Zook of Benton Harbor.

LAST PERFORMANCE: Crowd joins in laughter with Mrs. Lil Armstrong, 68, former wife of the late trumpeter Louis Armstrong, as she beats out a tune on piano Friday at Chicago's Civic Center Plaza during blues tribute to "Satchmo." Labor Puts Heat On Nixon

Pay Increases May Be Unfrozen

By ROBERT L. CAMPBELL

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the wake of Japan's decision to let the yen float in international money trading, the Nixon administration has hinted to workers they eventually may be allowed to collect frozen pay hikes.

"I feel that as much as possible, where there are bona fide, legitimate contracts, people should get what they have coming to them," Asst. Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery said Friday. Labor sources estimate $500 million in negotiated wage increases are frozen under the wage-price sanctions.

Usery said at a news conference no final determination has been made on whether workers may collect the pay hikes, but he said the administration is considering such action in response to organized labor's complaints.

"I think in due time these decisions will be made," he said.

VICTORY

Usery's comments came amid statements by the government and leading economists that the floating of the yen signified a victory for Nixon's policies.

Adding to the administration's brighter view was a Department of Commerce report that the government's list of leading business indicators showed a solid advance in July, and that revised data for June virtually wiped out a decline in the indicators that month.

Noting the report was based on figures before Nixon's wage-price freeze, Asst. Secretary of Commerce Harold C. Passer said "additional stimulus is being provided by the new economic program."

Japan's action on the yen was expected to improve the U.S. trade deficit by encouraging American exports and discouraging imports, one of the chief goals of the Nixon plan. U.S. labor unions have complained bitterly for several years that a flood of cheaper Japanese goods was putting thousands of Americans out of work.

"The yen was the major objective of our floating the dollar, and letting the yen float accomplishes the prime objective," observed Walter Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

"It should do a lot to help relieve international monetary tensions."

The White House and the U.S. Treasury called the decision "a further step toward a more realistic alignment of international exchange rates which the President envisioned."

MOUNT KISCO, N.Y. (AP) — Bennett Cerf, publisher of classics and best sellers who was best known as a witty television panelist and teller of jokes, died late Friday at his home here. He was 73.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but police said it was natural causes. He was dead when a police ambulance arrived at the house at 11:45 p.m.

Cerf was chairman of Random House publishers, which he founded in 1927. He also founded Modern Library Inc., and was its president.

His wife, the former Phyllis Fraser, was with him when he died. Besides the 42-acre estate here they had a town house in New York, where they held many parties for the famous and distinguished.

As a panelist on television's "What's My Line" from 1952 to 1966, Cerf's smiling, bespectacled face became known to millions of Americans.

He was an irrepressible collector of jokes, and published them in a series of books, a daily newspaper column called "Try and Stop Me," (published in the St. Joseph Herald-Press) and a Sunday feature called the "Cerfboard."

He was a director of RCA Inc., and Alfred A. Knopf, Inc., publishers, and had been a director of Bantam Books.

He was chairman of television's Peabody Awards Committee from 1955 to 1967.

A 1920 graduate of the Columbia University School of Journalism, he began his career as a reporter on the old New York Herald Tribune.

Arab States Try Another Union

Arab States Try Another Union

Plebiscites are being held Wednesday in Egypt, Libya and Syria on a proposal to form them into a Federation of Arab Republics.

The heads of state in each country signed a new constitution for the FAR on August 20th in Syria's capital city of Damascus.

President Sadat of Egypt spoke of the arrangement three months earlier. "There will be one president, one flag, one anthem and one federal capital."

The new constitution, it approved by the three referendum votes, contains a political-military clause designed to prevent eroding FAR from within. Member states may come to the aid of another member in the event of an internal threat, basically, one group seeking to oust the government in power.

There is also an economic clause calling for sharing in oil revenues, basically a Libyan monopoly.

FAR has two objectives, short term and long term, which blend ideologically.

Its first purpose is to put Israel in its place.

Its long haul destination is to revive Pan Arabism to something of the geographic and cultural unity which hit its greatest height under the Abbasid Caliphate in the 8th century. Before Europe had scarcely entered into medieval era the Arab world in those days stretched from the Euphrates river to the Atlantic coastline.

Though Wednesday's referendum is an odds on favorite to receive ballot box approval FAR's viability beyond election day is something else to guess at.

While the constitution calls for widespread sharing of benefits and responsibilities, each state retains its original sovereignty. From that light FAR is as durable as any member chooses to keep its word.

The history of recent merger efforts among some Arab states is not a promising background to FAR.

Egypt and Syria took the first step in 1958 under the banner of the United Arab Republic, joined a few months later by Yemen. A 1961 military coup replaced the Syrian government, which signed up for UAR, and the Republic terminated.

Iraq and Jordan compacted in the same year that launched UAR, only to dissolve in 1959 because of the assassination of King Feisal II in an Iraqi coup.

Egypt, Iraq and Syria agreed to another confederation in 1963. Internal bickering within Iraq and Syria faulted the agreement before it could take effect.

In the following year Egypt and Iraq established a joint Presidency Council at Cairo. A right wing military revolt four years later in Iraq repudiated the consortium.

While the Arab as distinguished from his political sovereign years for an end to the internal bickering among the Arab states, fulfilling the wish has to overcome the pitfalls characterizing any alliance.

A confederation if it is to work at all has to delegate its leadership to one member. A common denominator by way of race, language or religion is close to being essential.

The sticking point in FAR and most of the prior merger efforts is Egypt.

She is a non-Arabic nationality assuming the spokesman's role for Arabs themselves.

Militarily and otherwise, she overshadows the other Arab states. This position chills many of the leaders in those lesser entities.

It was this combination which simplified the Allied task of knocking Turkey out of World War I. The common religious bond could not dissolve those two localized barriers inside the old Ottoman Empire, and its constituent Arab lands went over to the Allied invader.

The late President Nasser lacked the soft salesmanship which is probably the only available tool for fashioning this thorny obstacle.

Sadat, thus far, has displayed a better talent in that respect.

FAR's success rests largely upon his diplomatic touch.

Five Years Of College

A five-year college plan as the basic requirement for a well rounded education may not have much more chance of adoption than the 12-month term, but the suggestion has some logic pointing in its favor.

Proponents of the plan contend it has become impossible to gain a broad education in four years with today's galloping technology and depth in the arts and sciences. Their solution is a five-year program, and without specialization at that.

Trampling on an educational tradition dating back to the Middle Ages, these innovators would discard the fixed four-year curriculum in favor of one patterned to the needs of the individual student.

The inflexible academic lock-step must be broken. Some students may make it in four years; others will require six, depending upon the student's ability and application and the extent and quality of his secondary education. So the argument goes.

The student should be introduced to as many areas of the arts and sciences as possible. He shouldn't have to miss either chemistry or Shakespeare, art or anthropology.

This approach would reverse the trend toward a narrow field of specialization in undergraduate studies and postpone until graduate school the preparation for vocations in architecture, engineering, journalism, business and education.

If from no other viewpoint and there are many the huge increase in the cost of an education in one of the professions is sufficient reason why the suggestion will not attract many adherents. Not at first.

But the longer people look at the failings of higher education as it is constituted today, and the more they consider the growing array of new knowledge which totally escapes the attention of the average college student, the more attractive the five-year plan will begin to appear.

Wearers Of The Bow

Anyone who has filtered through a modern personnel department recently is probably aware the matching of men to jobs is not an exact science. A certain amount of nonsense is bound to seep into such an arcane undertaking, and a Chicago executive recruiter has just qualified for whatever prize is given for nonsensical advice.

Don't wear a bow tie to a job interview, this man says, because bow tie wearers usually "come off as clods with a dash of barn paint around their necks."

Aside from the suspicion this may be the pronouncement of a man who cannot tie a bow tie, it displays dismal ignorance about why some men prefer them. This time of year they're cooler. And at all times they are, in contrast to the four-in-hand, immune to food spots.

Anyone who can get food spots on a bow tie needs a higher chair.

Judge Edward Silver, writes Dr. Jack Bloomfield, asserts that the teacher he remembers best was a Miss Denforth, of P. S. 164 in Brooklyn — over 50 years ago—Mrs. Denforth, a strict disciplinarian, brooked no nonsense in her classroom — but her pupils adored her as much as they feared her. "Silver," she would predict severely, "you will wind up in Sing Sing." "And," concludes the Judge with a smile, "you know, that's what I did. Fortunately, however, it was on the right side of the wall!"

DR. COLEMAN

..And Speaking Of Your Health

The gratifying high rate of cure in cancer of the breast is a heartening example of coordination between medicine and education.

For years the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute have bombarded the public with educational aimed at early detection of breast cancer.

When any lump of any kind is even vaguely suspected, it now is being brought to the attention of the physician who is armed with remarkable new diagnostic methods for positive identification.

It is now possible, with "soft" X-rays, and with scanning devices, to pick up cancer in its earliest stages.

Surgery, with or without follow-up cobalt treatment, can soon be responsible for an 80 per cent to 99 per cent rate of five-year cure, if people take advantage of the concept of early detection.

A new drug, clofibrate, is now being used to reduce the amount of cholesterol and triglycerides, another fatty substance, in the blood.

Dr. Donald Berkowitz, of the Temple University School of Medicine in Philadelphia, recently reported at meetings of the American Medical Association that this drug is even more effective than rigid diet.

He emphasizes that the commination of both may be the ideal way to accomplish the objective of reduced cholesterol.

These studies will be carefully repeated and evaluated by other doctors before there is total acceptance and distribution of the drug.

Children born with the yellow discoloration of jaundice are known to have a marked increase of a pigment, bilirubin, in the blood.

Complex treatment and specialized types of blood transfusion are used to extract and reduce this excess pigment.

It has been known that when bilirubin solutions in bottles were exposed to sunlight or to artificial light they lost their color.

A nurse in England noted that when newborn children were exposed to sunlight the jaundice seemed to be less marked. This was the birth of a concept known as "phototherapy" which, if verified, may be a tremendous contribution to the treatment of jaundice in the newborn.

It is astonishing how frequently, in science, a casual observation is converted to a significant conclusion.

Dr. Lester Coleman has prepared a special booklet for readers of this column, "Alcoholism — A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cent in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., in care of this newspaper. Please mention the booklet by title.

Opening lead — seven of spades.

Suppose someone offers you a bet where you can't lose, where you might win, and where the worst possibility is that you'll break even. Presumably you'd grab any such bet very readily, for the fact is that such attractive propositions do not exactly grow on trees.

Occasionally, situations of this type arise at the bridge table. The setup may be such that you can gain a trick by making a certain play, with no corresponding chance of losing one.

Let's say you're in six spades and West leads a trump. You're off to a bad start, for, if West had led anything else, you would have made the hand by simply ruffing two hearts in dummy.

There's no use crying over spilt milk, so you win the spade with the nine, ruff a diamond, cash the A-K of hearts, ruff a heart, and ruff another diamond.

You then draw two rounds of trumps, bringing yourself to the crucial point of the hand. You might now feel tempted to try the club finesse, but that would be the wrong thing to do, for it would give you only about a 50-50 shot at the contract.

Instead, you should lead your last heart. This play cannot cost you a thing, but it might — and in the actual case would — make the slam. East wins with the queen and is forced to return a diamond or a club into dummy's pair of A-Q's. As a result, you make twelve tricks. It is true that if West had the queen the heart play would not accomplish a thing — but in that case you could still take the club finesse. Thus, by playing the fourth heart, you have practically everything to gain and nothing to lose.

BORN TODAY

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, German poet, playwright and novelist, never stagnated, but was always learning and expanding, seeking to grasp more of what he regarded as the poet's proper domain, the entire world.

It was, in part, this incessant questing that helps to explain his stature as one of the giants of the literary world.

Besides his writings, he held an important cabinet post in Weimar, directed the theater there and carried on extensive research in science.

His poetic works are characterized by an interest in the natural, organic development of things rather than in any idealistic schemes.

In his early career (1769-1776) he was recognized as a leading figure in a literary movement in the late 18th century leading to romanticism. The movement was especially rich in drama and lyric poetry.

His well-known poem "Prometheus" insisted that man must believe in himself alone and not in any gods.

He sometimes feared for his reason during his turbulent youth, but in 1775 he broke with his past life and left Frankfurt on Main for the city of Weimar. The years until 1786 were not productive from a literary standpoint, but did contribute to his personal balance.

His so-called classical period began in 1788 when he repudiated his early emotionalism, but as time went on, he drifted back toward his earlier attitude.

He died in 1832. Others born today include Charles Boyer, Richard Tucker and John Koch.

Born on August 29 were Oliver Wendell Holmes, Barry Sullivan and Ingrid Bergman.

Only Seven Area Districts Can Grant Raises

An informal survey among a majority of southwestern Michigan school districts shows that only about seven will be able to grant teacher's scheduled pay hikes for this year, under the latest interpretation of the federal wage freeze.

The poll, conducted by telephone, showed that Bridgman,

River Valley, Niles, and Coloma districts in Berrien county and Bangor, Covert and Decatur in Van Buren could grant the boosts.

This situation stemmed from the latest ruling which said raises granted under a contract effective before Aug. 15 could be given.

Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, and Lakeshore, the three major Twin Cities area districts apparently do not meet the requirement.

In Benton Harbor teacher contracts expired Aug. 15, and issues involved in a new one are in mediation. St. Joseph reached agreement in February to grant teachers a 6.2 per cent boost but made the effective date Aug. 30.

Lakeshore teachers are to vote next week on a package with an effective date of Sept. 1.

OLD CONTRACT
Supt. Lionel Stacey said teachers will start to work under the old contract schedule with no annual longevity increase, "according to our understanding at this time."

Stacey said the only way for a teacher could receive a raise would be in a promotion to a job paying more before the freeze or going from the bachelor's degree category to a master's degree schedule.

Other districts blocked by the Aug. 15 date include Berrien Springs, Gallien, Buchanan, Eau Claire, and New Buffalo in Berrien county, and Lawton, Cobles, South Haven, Hartford, Paw Paw and Lawrence in Van Buren; Fennville in Allegan; and Dowagiac and Cassopolis in Cass county.

The New Buffalo situation was ironic. Teachers and the board reached agreement on a 1971-72 contract there in January, but made the effective date Aug. 21, six days after the later imposed freeze deadline.

In districts eligible to grant a raise, the Bridgman Education association ratified the new contract July 23, with board of education approval on August 2. Both teachers and the board of education ratified the River Valley contract July 28.

Contracts in Coloma and Decatur school districts became effective August 9.

Covert, with a continuing contract providing for salary negotiations each year, ratified a salary schedule in June, effective July 1.

TWO DISTRICTS
At the present time, only Niles and Bridgman school districts have taken action to implement raises for the first pay period, Sept. 3, according to Supt. Doyle Barkmeier of the Berrien county intermediate school district. He said all the other districts of Berrien and Cass counties have frozen salaries at last year's rate, including annual increment raises, pending further clarification.

Elmer Van Dyke, superintendent of Van Buren Intermediate school district, said that according to his understanding of the latest ruling, all districts in Van Buren county would be subject to the wage freeze, but "we have decided to await additional clarification."

Baroda Youth Transferred To U-M Hospital

A Baroda youth was taken to University hospital, Ann Arbor, with a back injury received about 1 p.m. Friday, when an auto he was riding in went out of control and rammed a concrete culvert on Cleveland avenue, just south of Rocky Wood road, Lincoln township.

Berrien county sheriff's officers identified the youth as Alan Lee Spilger, 17, of 1952 Hinchman road. He was taken to Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, and then transferred to Ann Arbor, Memorial hospital reported that he had a back injury, apparently involving the spinal cord.

Spilger was reported to be a passenger in an auto driven by John R. Smith, 19, Mesa, Ariz. Deputies said the auto went out of control while traveling north on Cleveland. Witnesses told officers the vehicle had passed another car, then skidded on wet pavement and struck the culvert, continued another 18 feet and came to rest in a driveway. The driveway and culvert are on the Karl Allen property, 6555 Cleveland, deputies said. Deputies said it was raining at the time.

Admitted to Memorial hospital was Smith, who was listed in fairly good condition this morning.

Two other persons were injured in separate accidents in the twin city area.

St. Joseph police said Mark E. Knuth, 20, of 1927 Hawthorne, St. Joseph, was injured about 5:30 p.m. Friday, when a motorcycle he was driving and an auto collided on Main street, just north of Winchester avenue. Knuth was reported today to be in fairly good condition at Memorial hospital.

Police said the driver of the auto, Geraldine Pringle, 19, of 688 Superior, Benton Harbor, was turning into a driveway when the motorcycle and auto collided. Witnesses told police the motorcycle had been weaving in and out of traffic and had just passed another vehicle before the collision. No summons was issued, police indicated.

Benton township police said Marc R. Wiederwax, 18, of 1403 North Anzella, St. Joseph, was treated for lacerations at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, and released, when his auto and another collided on M-139 at Pipestone about 10:57 p.m. Friday. Police said Wiederwax was driving north on M-139 when the other auto turned left in front of the youth and then left the scene of the accident. Police said an investigation is continuing into the owner of the other auto.

$5 Each For Unlicensed Camps Growers Get 'Technical' Fines

Three Berrien County growers were assessed $5 each in fine and cost Friday in Fifth District court for operating agricultural labor camps without a license. A fourth grower pleaded innocent to the charge.

Judge John T. Hammond assessed $5 against John Ashman, 55, of 1478 Nickerson avenue, Sodas, for operating an unlicensed labor camp July 12 in Sodas township, and K.V. Stover, 60, of 3801 St. Joseph road, Berrien Springs, for operating and unlicensed camp July 9 in Sodas township. Both pleaded guilty to charges on July 14 and had been on presentence investigation.

Pauline Brenner, 78, of Route 2, North Branch road, Watervliet, was assessed $5 by Judge Harry Laity following her plea of nolo contendere to the charge of operating a labor camp without a license Aug. 13 in Bainbridge township. Judge Laity also set bond at $100 for Thomas Collier, 70, of Route 2, Watervliet, after he pleaded innocent to the same charge.

Judge Hammond said he gave minimum sentences to Ashman and Stover because the cases were based on technical, rather than flagrant, violations of the law. The two cases are similar to that of a man who "receives a speeding ticket for going one mile over the limit. These are not cases you want to hang a guy for. The embarrassment of being in court is worse than the sentencing," he explained. Judge Laity said he did not want to comment on the case against Pauline Brenner.

Noel Noggle and Mike Williamson, Fifth District court probation officers who did the presentence investigation report for Judge Hammond, said they recommended minimum treatment because they "couldn't see using Ashman and Stover as scapegoats. There are many worse violators."

Williamson said that Ashman "doesn't really run a camp. A family of seven was staying on his property and working, but only two were adult workers. He did not consider this a labor camp but the health department considers the children as workers also. Ashman gave the family a place to stay only after they begged him for housing."

Noggle said Stover had two licensed camps and was in the process of getting a license for the third camp when the health department inspected it. "The crew boss had brought in extra people and Stover was told to get an order of eviction or the camp would be closed. This is what Stover wanted, but, instead of closing the camp, health officials put out a warrant for him. He is now meeting standards for the camp."

Candle Sets Off SJ Blaze

Five persons escaped injury when fire from a candle ignited two boys' work benches in a house at 1444 Main street, St. Joseph early today.

St. Joseph fire department were summoned at 3:58 a.m. and withdrew at 5 a.m.

Firemen reported Reba Windsor, owner, and one of the occupants, smelled smoke and alerted Melvin Reeves, another occupant who alerted his son and Gwynn Patton and infant and another occupant to evacuate the house.

Firemen said two boys making models had used a candle to soften and fashion plastic parts and left the candle burning. One of the boys is Reeves' son but was not further identified, nor was his companion.

The work table was destroyed, some of the models and the basement beams were charred. There was some slight smoke damage on the first floor.

Firemen reported the boys had worked to around 1:15 p.m. working on the models.

Widower Sues BH For $50,000

The husband of a rural St. Joseph woman who drowned when her car plunged into the Benton Harbor ship canal in 1969 filed suit Friday in Berrien circuit court claiming $50,000 damages against the city.

Henry J. Dongvillo, whose wife, Veronica, 69, drowned Aug. 23, 1969, when her car plunged into the ship canal northwest of Main street and Riverview drive, claims in suit that the city disregarded its duty to erect a barricade at the canal.

The suit claims Mrs. Dongvillo's car left the Jewel food store parking lot, collided with one moving and one parked car, plunged into the canal off Riverview and sank in 20 to 30 feet of water.

James Fennessy of Watervliet filed suit against a Watervliet couple, Ray and June Samples, claiming $15,000 damages for injuries Fennessy's 16-year-old daughter, Terri, allegedly suffered as a result of attack by dogs.

Fennessy's suit claims Terri lost control of her bike when attacked by two dogs last April 10 in Watervliet and hit a parked truck, breaking her arm.

Also this week, the prime contractor for the new Benton Harbor post office filed suit against the insurance company of a subcontractor claiming $20,478.27 damages for alleged nonperformance of contract.

Gevyn Construction Corp. of Mamaroneck, N.Y., names as defendant Great American Insurance Co. of New York, insurer of Pre-Don Industries, Inc.

Joseph Requests Use Of SJ Park

Benton Harbor mayoral candidate Charles Joseph wants to use Riverview park, St. Joseph, to stage an entertainment spectacular with proceeds going to a youth service center fund.

The request for the park was filed with City Manager Leland Hill by Atty. Stephen Small, chairman, Citizens for Charles Joseph for Mayor.

A youth service center in Benton Harbor is part of Joseph's campaign platform. He has estimated the cost at $250,000 to $300,000.

Small wrote Hill that Joseph's committee wants to stage two concerts at the park Sept. 26. "We have made tentative arrangements to bring entertainment to our area which will draw large numbers of people from all of southwestern Michigan," Small said. "We are speaking of established stars in the entertainment field such as Sammy Davis, Jr., Harry Belafonte, Joan Wilson.

"The proceeds from sale of tickets for these concerts would be used to defray our expenses and to build a fund for our Youth Services Center."

Small said the committee is requesting Riverview because it "can accommodate so many more thousands of people than any other facility we know of."

There would be an afternoon concert for young people and an evening performance for adults.

The request is expected to come before the St. Joseph city commission Monday.

Fairplain Hearing To Resume

A state hearing resumes Monday in Lansing on an appeal by West Fairplain residents of a Berrien Intermediate school board ruling denying their transfer from Benton Harbor to St. Joseph school district.

The hearing is at 9:30 a.m. in the Seven-Story office building, 525 West Ottawa street, behind the capitol building and near the civic center. It is a continuation of a State Department of Education hearing that was recessed July 19.

SECOND BOOKSTORE: Ray Wilder and his wife, Edna, this week opened their second book store in the Twin Cities. The new location is 511 Pleasant street, St. Joseph — a companion to their store at 143 East Main street Benton Harbor. The Wilders started in the book business nine years ago when a small literary section was put in Wilder's phar-

CAMP DAY: More than 100 children in the Twin Cities area attended the annual camp day held this year at Hall Park in Benton Harbor. The children participated in numerous games and each made a large paper flower to take home, with the help of 25 adult leaders. The camp day was sponsored by the Michigan State university Cooperative Extension Service's family program and Model Cities. (Staff photo)

Students Get To Vote At Campus Towns

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Supreme Court ruled Friday that college and university students must be allowed to register and vote in their campus communities.

"In the future, students must be treated the same as all other registrants," the high court said. "No special questions, forms, identification, etc., may be required of students."

The court said current student residency requirements in the state election law violate both the Michigan and U.S. Constitutions.

STUDENTS SUE

The unanimous decision reversed a Court of Appeals ruling in a suit brought by eight University of Michigan students against John P. Bentley, Ann Arbor city clerk, in 1968.

It applies to all students over 18 who meet regular voter residency requirements. An elector must be a citizen of the United States, a resident of Michigan for at least six months and a resident of a city or township for at least 30 days before the next regular, special or primary election.

The opinion written by Justice John B. Swainson said voting residency for other citizens is "clear and unequivocal," but the law applied to students "varies from city to city and from local clerk to local clerk."

Swainson pointed out that Ann Arbor elections officials provided a comprehensive questionnaire for would-be student voters, while Detroit officials had no special questions for students.

"The ability to exercise the precious right to vote cannot depend on whether a student attends school in a large city or a smaller town," he said.

That problem, Swainson said, could be solved through issuance of guidelines.

But, he continued, the interaction of Michigan voting laws and provisions of other states' absentee voter laws caused the voting franchise to be withheld from some. "The ideal of one man-one vote dissolves into the harsh reality of one man but no vote," he said.

The opinion cited the Court of Appeals ruling that the election law regarding students helped prevent voting fraud, but said: "While it may be true that the provisions... do to some minor extent aid in this purpose, that is not sufficient to justify its constitutionality," it said.

Deny students the right to vote also denied their participation on juries and thus trial by a jury of their peers, the opinion held.

PAY TAXES

In addition, it pointed out that students pay income, sales, use and gasoline taxes—without representation—and are counted in population tallies for the purpose of distributing state funds on a per capita basis.

Students also are considered Michigan residents for tax purposes and the federal government provides community grants based on population including student counts.

The court held that students "cannot be denied the right to vote... because of the state's interest in promoting an informed and concerned electorate. There is every reason to believe they might be even better informed on current issues than other citizens," the court said.

Citing "a purported fear of... student voters overwhelming the townspeople at the polls," the court said that fear was underlying in an 1893 opinion on voting but is not longer constitutionally permissible.

FEARS UNFOUNDED

"Fears have been expressed in the past when new groups have been granted the franchise, and these fears have proven to be largely unfounded," it said. "The fear that students will vote radically different from the bulk of the electorate is problematical at this point."

Cosigning Swainson's opinion were Chief Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh and Justices Thomas G. Kavanagh and Eugene F. Black.

Justice G. Mennen Williams concurred but said in a separate opinion that if students in residence had an option of where to vote, "all the senseless folderol of voter registration in some of our college towns would be dispensed with."

Justice G. Mennen Williams agreed with Brennan's opinion, as well as the Swainson analysis.

Justice Paul L. Adams also concurred, saying "there is no rational basis for treating students differently from other citizens in their exercise of the fundamental right to vote."

Adams cited the Michigan statute providing that if a person has more than one residence, "That place at which such person resides the greater part of the time shall be his or her official residence."

"Special treatment of students is an arbitrary and invidious discrimination against them," he declared.

Such requirements were outlawed by Friday's ruling and EMU students now may have a substantial impact on Ypsilanti elections since the city population is only 29,000. The population figure probably does not include many students.

Schwab predicted that the Supreme Court ruling, coupled with the recent passage of the constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18, could be "decisive" in Democrats' efforts to unseat Republican Rep. Marvin Esch of the 2nd Congressional District.

Esch's district includes both Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, home of the 32,000-student University of Michigan.

Rev. William T. Bowne, former Ypsilanti GOP chairman, suggested that "especially initially" many students will register in their college towns and that more of them will be Democrats than Republicans.

After the publicity surrounding the move dies down, he predicted, students will be less likely to vote in large numbers.

Bowne, a United Methodist chaplain at EMU, also suggested the Supreme Court ruling would encourage left-wing, third-party efforts in college towns.

In Ann Arbor, where the suit that led to Friday's ruling originated, the impact was expected to be somewhat less pronounced than in Ypsilanti. More students have been allowed to vote in the past in Ann Arbor and they constitute a smaller percentage of the city's 169,000 population than do EMU students in Ypsilanti.

Other communities likely to feel some impact from the ruling include East Lansing, Kalamazoo and Marquette.

The traditionally Republican-oriented nonpartisan government of East Lansing could be threatened by the registration of many of the 40,000 students at Michigan State University.

The city's population is only 47,000, and in the past city clerks have required documented proof of residence before they would register students to vote.

Northern Michigan University students have had few obstacles in registering to vote, but have been encouraged to register in their home towns, according to the city clerk's office. The city has 7,000 college students and a population of 22,000.

In Kalamazoo, the student population at Western Michigan University and Kalamazoo College totals 21,300. In the past students were required to prove they were self-supporting before they could vote. The city's population is 85,000.

Such requirements were outlawed by Friday's ruling and EMU students now may have a substantial impact on Ypsilanti elections since the city population is only 29,000. The population figure probably does not include many students.

Four Championships

Berrien Equestrians Score High At State

All 10 Berrien county 4-H entrants competing this week at the annual state 4-H horse show placed in the top 10 of their classes and four walked away with championship ribbons.

Larry Cushman, Berrien 4-H agent, reported a strong showing by Berrien's representatives among 320 boys and girls from every county in the state Tuesday at Michigan State University, East Lansing.

Steven Roderick of Berrien Springs won overall grand champion pleasure horse in western stock horse division. Tami Hudak of Benton Harbor scored first in fitting and showmanship and won a championship ribbon in equitation in the same division.

Missy Platts of St. Joseph won the grand champion ribbon for equitation for those age 15 and under in the "registered horse other than quarterhorse" division. She also ranked second in fitting and showmanship.

Sharon Cox of Berrien Springs won champion in fitting and showmanship in the hunter seat division. She also won reserve

The state 4-H show is by invitation only.

Six Hurt In M-140 Accident

NILES — Six persons were injured — two seriously — in a two-car collision shortly after 11 p.m. last night on M-140, three miles north of here in Niles township.

Listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Berrien General hospital were the drivers of the two vehicles, Ben Tobar, 21, of Covert, and Elizabeth Heath, 52, of Joliet, Ill.

Hospital officials said Tobar suffered a fractured thigh and the Heath woman, fractures of the pelvis and leg.

Four passengers in the two vehicles, Sarah Perry, 18, Annette Patton, 18, and Donnie Patton, 20, all of 344 Colby, Benton Harbor, and Lynette Gibson, 17, of Joliet, were treated and released from the hospital for apparent minor injuries.

Niles state police said the two vehicles collided nearly head-on, just south of Stafford road on M-140. Officers at the scene said it was impossible to determine which vehicle has crossed the centerline.

The accident remains under investigation.

Three Oaks Bank Donates Purchases

For the first time in recent memory, the buyer of animals at the Berrien county youth fair has donated them for further benefit of 4-H youngsters in Berrien county.

Larry Cushman, 4-H agent for Berrien, announced Friday that the Bank of Three Oaks has donated the champion Angus steer and a market lamb it bought at the recent youth fair to the Berrien County 4-H Foundation to be used as the foundation sees fit.

The animals probably will be sold, with proceeds donated to the foundation's investments for the county 4-H youth program, Cushman said.

The bank paid 76 cents a pound for a 1,000-pound steer shown by Diane Benhart of Three Oaks and 70 cents a pound for a 90-pound market lamb shown by Gail Chestnut of Three Oaks. Both animals were on display Friday and today at the bank's Sawyer branch.

The foundation, a nonprofit agency, has a goal of 225,000 and to date has received nearly $70,000, Cushman reported.

FINAL TOUCHES: Workers of Wyatt Construction Co., Grand Rapids, blow shredded straw along shoulder of new stretch of I-94, just north of Indiana line, part of "missing link" between Chicago and Michigan. The straw will anchor grass seed and contain moisture. Late this year the road is scheduled to open to traffic, linking up with a six-mile stretch in Indiana, as far south as US-20, near Michigan City. Entire length of hookup from New Buffalo to Indiana tollroad at Gary is scheduled for completion late next year. Approaches to huge rest area and information center are seen in distance on right. (Don Wehner photo)

Student Vote Ruling May Boost Democrats, Liberals

By MARTIN HIRSCHMAN

Associated Press Writer
Political liberals, members of the Democratic party and even college students themselves will probably stand a better chance of winning local elections in Michigan's college towns as the result of a State Supreme Court ruling Friday.

That was the preliminary assessment given by local political leaders contacted Friday for reaction to the court's ruling that college students must be allowed to register to vote where they go to school.

"I'm tremendously pleased," said Fred Schwab of Ypsilanti, a Democratic Washtenaw County commissioner. "I think it will have the effect of moving Ypsilanti from an ultra-conservative city council to a progressive city council."

Most all of the 20,000 Eastern Michigan University students live in Ypsilanti and most have been excluded from registering to vote in the past by requirements that they prove they are completely self-supporting.

Bowne, a United Methodist chaplain at EMU, also suggested the Supreme Court ruling would encourage left-wing, third-party efforts in college towns.

In Ann Arbor, where the suit that led to Friday's ruling originated, the impact was expected to be somewhat less pronounced than in Ypsilanti. Schwab predicted that the Supreme Court ruling, coupled with the recent passage of the constitutional amendment lowering the voting age to 18, could be "decisive" in Democrats' efforts to unseat Republican Rep. Marvin Esch of the 2nd Congressional District.

Esch's district includes both Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, home of the 32,000-student University of Michigan.

Rev. William T. Bowne, former Ypsilanti GOP chairman, suggested that "especially initially" many students will register in their college towns and that more of them will be Democrats than Republicans.

After the publicity surrounding the move dies down, he predicted, students will be less likely to vote in large numbers.

Bowne, a United Methodist chaplain at EMU, also suggested the Supreme Court ruling would encourage left-wing, third-party efforts in college towns.

In Ann Arbor, where the suit that led to Friday's ruling originated, the impact was expected to be somewhat less pronounced than in Ypsilanti. More students have been allowed to vote in the past in Ann Arbor and they constitute a smaller percentage of the city's 169,000 population than do EMU students in Ypsilanti.

Other communities likely to feel some impact from the ruling include East Lansing, Kalamazoo and Marquette.

The traditionally Republican-oriented nonpartisan government of East Lansing could be threatened by the registration of many of the 40,000 students at Michigan State University.

The city's population is only 47,000, and in the past city clerks have required documented proof of residence before they would register students to vote.

Northern Michigan University students have had few obstacles in registering to vote, but have been encouraged to register in their home towns, according to the city clerk's office. The city has 7,000 college students and a population of 22,000.

In Kalamazoo, the student population at Western Michigan University and Kalamazoo College totals 21,300. In the past students were required to prove they were self-supporting before they could vote. The city's population is 85,000.

Such requirements were outlawed by Friday's ruling and EMU students now may have a substantial impact on Ypsilanti elections since the city population is only 29,000. The population figure probably does not include many students.

Value Of Yen Climbs 5 Percent

TOKYO (AP) — The value of the Japanese yen jumped 5 percent today in relation to the dollar, after the government bowed to U.S. pressure and allowed the yen to float on its foreign exchange market.

The yen closed on the Tokyo market at 341.30 to the dollar, an increase of 5.19 percent over the 360 to the dollar rate set after World War II. But the half-day trading session wasn't considered a real test of the yen's value.

Dealers said the yen was first offered at 333.50, but there were no takers. Total volume was about $160 million.

After an initial plunge, prices rallied, on the Tokyo Stock Exchange and the final quotations for most issues today were near those at the close of Friday's session.
